Okay, I'll comment on the article provided in Portuguese Brazil.

The article discusses how algorithms have transformed the sports betting industry. They offer far better odds than the old fashion way, by evaluating detailed statistics, therefore increasing the chance of winning. It also talks about how algorithms are increasingly more present in today's society, from spam filters, ads, movie, and song recommendations, and evolving, becoming more sophisticated at analyzing data and identifying patterns that are impossible for a human to identify. The article concludes by saying that we are only at the tip of the iceberg when it comes to what the future holds.

Algorithms are vital for sports predictions these days, they allow people to have better odds at sports betting online. However, the risk of losses is always present, even when the best algorithms are used and the best decisions are made. So instead of just relying on predictions, gamblers must also consider bankroll management.
